

SOUTH AFRICA:
9-DAY KWA ZULU NATAL CUSTOM TRIP REPORT

10 – 18 September 2019

By Jason Boyce

Livingstone's Turaco showed beautifully for us in the iSimangaliso Wetland Park.

Overview

The province of KwaZulu-Natal in South Africa holds the most species of all nine provinces due largely to the very varied habitats in the province, the pristine grasslands in the northwest, the coastal habitats, sand forest, and the Drakensberg mountains on the border of Lesotho. On this tour we recorded 272 species (plus an additional 30 species that were heard only), including a few cracking ones such as African Broadbill, African Wood Owl, Narina Trogon, Neergaard's Sunbird, Eastern Bronze-naped Pigeon, and Drakensberg specials like Drakensberg Rockjumper and Bearded Vulture.

We had a wonderful time in northern Zululand, visiting Tembe Elephant Park, Ndumo Game Reserve, and Mkhuze Game Reserve and spending time photographing the likes of Gorgeous Bushshrike as well as picking up a rarity or two at the famous St Lucia Estuary. Eshowe, and more specifically Dlinza Forest, produced some fantastic species, including up-close-and-personal looks at Purple-crested Turaco and Green Twinspot. The Drakensberg was another highlight; we took a day trip up the Sani Pass and connected with the main targets of the area.

Detailed Report

Day 1, 10th September 2019 – Pickup at Johannesburg, transfer to Tembe Elephant Park

The first day of our tour was delayed; this meant we had a long transfer from the airport to Tembe Elephant Park, where we would stay for a couple of nights. We did manage to pick up a few species en route. A couple of good Highveld species showed rather well; we saw Greater and Lesser Flamingos, South African Shelduck, Long-tailed Widowbird (still in winter plumage), Cape Longclaw, and a few really awesome sightings of Marsh Owl. As one descends into the Zululand region of KwaZulu-Natal vegetation and scenery change remarkably. Fever trees line the highway near Mkhuze Town, and of course a whole new suite of birds awaits. A short rest and lunch stop produced a number of common species such as Fork-tailed Drongo, Southern Black Flycatcher, the striking Scarlet-chested Sunbird, Brown-hooded Kingfisher, White-browed Robin-Chat, and Chinspot Batis.

We headed into Mkhuze Game Reserve, where we spent a few hours – the park was incredibly dry, but we did enjoy our time there. The kuMasinga hide produced the goods; Burchell's Coucal, Crested and Black-collared Barbets, and Woolly-necked Stork were all seen within the first few seconds after entering the hide. This is a beautifully situated hide that allows for a 270-degree view over a small pool of water. Many species were coming for a drink; they included Emerald-spotted Wood Dove, Ring-necked Dove, Yellow-fronted Canary, Golden-breasted Bunting, Yellow-throated Bush Sparrow, and Blue Waxbill. After a long day and a good start to our birding we made our way to Royal Thonga Safari Lodge, where we checked in (to the sounds of African Broadbill, Narina Trogon, and Pink-throated Twinspot) and enjoyed dinner and a good night's rest.

Day 2, 11th September 2019 – Full day in Tembe Elephant Park

A cup of coffee gave us the kick start we needed, and soon we were at the Tembe Elephant Park gate just after 6 a.m. We started things with a few Emerald Spotted Wood Doves and a beautiful pair of prized Pink-throated Twinspots. Both Rudd's and Yellow-breasted Apalises were around in decent numbers at a small clearing; here we also picked up the likes of Black- backed Puffback, Brown-crowned Tchagra, Purple-banded Sunbird, Long-billed Crombec, and Crowned Hornbill. A Purple-crested Turaco peered at us through the canopy and then flew over our vehicle, showing the incredible scarlet wing feathers. We took a walk in the lodge grounds after brunch; Blue-mantled Crested Flycatcher was very vocal and showed a couple of times, while a male Neergaard's Sunbird also gave some really pleasing views.

Just after midday we went back into the park and took a few different tracks to see what we could find. The area was extremely dry, and the birding as well as finding any game proved rather difficult. A Black-chested Snake Eagle cruised overhead and a pair of African Hoopoes gave a brief flyby. Crested Guineafowl was certainly a highlight today, and we picked up a few different groups throughout the day. The late afternoon session produced a few raptors, a family of birds that has certainly been scarce of late; Martial Eagle and Wahlberg's Eagle were seen catching thermals above us at one point, while an African Goshawk came shooting by the car at high speed. Another pair of Woolly-necked Storks was feeding at the edge of a small pool of water to the north of the park.

Grey Waxbill was another bird that proved elusive for the whole day but in the last hour gave a few high-pitched notes to give away its presence. We got great looks as one perched before flying into the thicker vegetation again. Nyala was the mammal of the day here; it certainly does very well in this park, and there are small groups around almost every corner.

Day 3, 12th September 2019 – Ndumo Game Reserve

Ndumo Game Reserve produced a change in habitat with some dryer, open sections of woodland as well as really nice riverine woodland dominated by fig and fever trees. The camp area produced a couple of enjoyable sightings, African Green Pigeon, flocks of Red-faced Mousebirds, White-eared Barbet, Grey Sunbird, and Lesser Striped Swallow. One of the bird hides gave us an amazing view of the floodplain alongside the pan and produced really good numbers of various species. A single African Openbill and many Egyptian and Spur-winged

Geese covered the open grassy plain. Various more common herons and egrets were showing well. As many as fifty Lesser Flamingos were around as well as a single Greater Flamingo. We also picked up two Caspian Terns, Collared Pratincole, Great White and Pink-backed Pelicans, Yellow-billed Stork, Black-winged Stilt, Marsh Sandpiper, Kittlitz's Plover, Little Stint, and Water Thick-knee.

Some of our woodland highlights included Green Wood Hoopoe, Brown-hooded Kingfisher, Green-winged Pytilia, Golden-tailed and Cardinal Woodpeckers, Little Bee-eater, Red-fronted Tinkerbird, White-crested Helmetshrike, Rudd's Apalis, and Red-billed Firefinch. Striated Heron as well as both Giant and Pied Kingfishers were really nice to get in our binoculars, while a number of pairs of Namaqua Doves provided close-up visuals.

This evening we spent some time trying to get visuals of the resident African Wood Owl. We certainly had some visuals of this beautiful owl, but unfortunately the bird was a little skittish and evaded our cameras.

Gorgeous Bushshrike

Day 4, 13th September 2019 – Travel south to St Lucia

After spending a few really enjoyable days in northern Zululand we moved south to the birding hotspot of St Lucia. Some rain hindered our progress over the next days, but we certainly made the most of it and found some really superb species. On the way we stopped at a pan (which was one of the few spots that had water), where we found the likes of Pink-backed Pelican, Hottentot and Red-billed Teals, and Greater and Lesser Flamingos. A small group of Grey-rumped Swallows came floating by, seemingly hanging in the stiff breeze. We then continued south to squeeze in some afternoon birding in St Lucia.

After arriving in town we made our way to the estuary, where we took a walk to the mud-flats to get some good looks at the plethora of waterfowl and shorebirds. It really was quite a sight! African Pied Wagtail strolled across the car park, and Crowned Hornbill came by and landed in one of the tall trees at the entrance to the boardwalk. We set the scope up and recorded a host of different birds, with Great Egret, Goliath Heron, Yellow-billed Stork, Black-winged Stilt, a few more Pink-backed Pelicans, flamingoes, and Caspian Terns all standing out well due to their larger size. Rudd's Apalis and Red-capped Robin-Chat were singing with some gusto behind us as the sun was setting. We decided to call it a day and looked forward to tomorrow.

Estuary birding at St Lucia, Greater Flamingo

Day 5, 14th September 2019 – St Lucia birding

An overcast morning with a hint of rain in the air had the potential of this being quite a slow day birdingwise but we managed to pick up some nice species as well as take a few good images. We started on the well-known Igwala Gwala Trail, where we found Sombre Greenbul, Brown Scrub Robin, Red-capped Robin-Chat, a whole group of Trumpeter Hornbill, Common Square-tailed Drongo, and Blue-mantled Crested Flycatcher all rather quickly. We enjoyed getting some visuals of a Woodward's Batis calling from a tangle of vines. Yellow-rumped Tinkerbird and Dark-backed Weaver put in a few good appearances too. Natal Red Duiker and Bushbuck were often seen on the forest paths in front of us, apparently very used to people. An African Harrier-Hawk flew overhead and out of sight behind some large trees.

After an excellent breakfast we spent some time on the roads in the town and thereafter traveled into the iSimangaliso Wetland Park. Within the first couple of hundred meters we found Yellow-throated Longclaw, Brown-hooded Kingfisher, Croaking Cisticola, and Collared Pratincole. We then had an amazing experience when three White Rhinoceros came walking toward us on the main road, passing our car within a mere two meters. What incredible animals, and an amazing experience to see them close-up! Farther along we encountered another Woolly-necked Stork, a few Red-breasted Swallows, and a party of White-eared Barbets that were hanging around at one of the hides. We also had a superb sighting of Livingstone's Turaco – a pair of these beautiful birds were hopping around in an open-canopy tree and spent about five minutes preening before moving off again.

Once back in St Lucia town we headed to the estuary for a sunset walk. Here we noticed an immature African Goshawk that was being mobbed by a couple of Cape White-eye. A really large group of both Greater and Lesser Flamingos gave some fantastically striking flybys, while a separate flock of over fifty Pied Avocets were also quite flashy!

Day 6, 15th September 2019 – St Lucia to Eshowe

We took another early morning walk to the beach, where we once again enjoyed scanning the estuary, mud-flats, and ocean. The time of year was perfect to get some views of Humpback Whales that had recently moved back into the waters off of KwaZulu-Natal. We could see a few tail-slaps and breaches, which even at a distance were really impressive.

Along the edge of the estuary we picked up Rufous-winged Cisticola and Brimstone Canary. Three African Oystercatchers were present, and a few Grey-headed Gulls gave flybys. We also picked up one or two Cape Gannets cruising a couple of hundred meters from the shore. Raptors in the area included African Marsh Harrier, African Fish Eagle and Long-crested Eagle. The tern roost was interesting and produced probably in the region of sixty Greater Crested Terns and a single, vagrant Gull-billed Tern. Shorebirds were out in good numbers; Black-winged Stilt, Pied Avocet, Grey, Common Ringed, White-fronted, Kittlitz's, and Three-banded Plovers, Whimbrel, Ruddy Turnstone, Ruff, Curlew, Common, Marsh, and Wood Sandpipers, Common Greenshank, Sanderling, and Little Stint were all also in attendance. Surprisingly there were up to seven Chestnut-banded Plovers hanging around too, certainly a good bird for KwaZulu-Natal. We left the town after a good breakfast and spent some time on the estuary bridge, photographing Eastern Golden and Southern Brown-throated Weavers as well as Little and White-rumped Swifts. A single Southern Banded Snake Eagle was also heard and seen very distantly from the bridge. The drive was fairly quiet birdwise, but we did pick up a few Jackal Buzzards en route. Woolly-necked Stork showed nicely in Mtunzini, as did Palm-nut Vulture, albeit a long way off. A short walk in the Dlinza Forest that afternoon was rather quiet too, but it did produce sightings of Red-capped Robin Chat, Lemon Dove, Olive Sunbird, and Blue-mantled Crested Flycatcher. A good night's rest was in order.

Day 7, 16th September 2019 – Eshowe Birding then transfer to Himeville

As we had hoped, we had a fantastic morning in Dlinza Forest. We started with a slow walk on the boardwalk and up to the viewing deck overlooking the top of the forest. It was certainly a morning for pigeons and doves; African Green Pigeon as well as African Olive Pigeon and Eastern Bronze-naped Pigeon were all in attendance, giving good flybys as well as occasionally perching nearby! Black-bellied Starling, Sombre Greenbul, Grey and Black Cuckooshrikes, Purple-crested Turaco, and small groups of White-eared Barbets were all singing away and also giving us opportunity to study them in the scope and binoculars. Yellow-bellied Greenbul and a pair of Purple-crested Turacos came up right next to the viewing platform, and we managed a few great pictures. A flock of Red-backed Mannikins flew by, while Bar-throated Apalis was hopping around behind us. Chorister Robin-Chat did eventually also show well as we strolled back on the boardwalk. We spent a good amount of time checking for the prized Spotted Ground Thrush but unfortunately only managed to get a few snippets of its call echoing from below us.

After spending time in the forest we went to a small bird hide and waited patiently to see what would come. It was better than expected! A small group of Green Twinspots came by a couple of times, oblivious to our presence. Tambourine and Lemon Doves both showed well, and a striking Chorister Robin-Chat also came to take a quick drink of water. We started our long drive west towards the Drakensberg, where we would spend the next two nights.

Day 8, 17th September 2019 – Sani Pass day trip into Lesotho

What a day! This was a day of incredible sights, beautiful landscapes, and some truly special birds. It was a brisk morning in Himeville, where we welcomed the warmth of the sunrise. A few goodies to kick off the morning included a Black Saw-wing flyby, Long-crested Eagle, Buff-streaked Chat, Yellow Bishop, and a bold Wailing Cisticola. We slowly started to gain altitude on our way up the Sani Pass as we got closer to the South African border control. We picked up

Cape Bunting and Malachite Sunbird and a little farther up we encountered Cape Rock Thrush. Once across the South African border we spotted a very distant Bearded Vulture flying up really high alongside some of the cliffs to the south of where we were. The switchback area produced many Drakensberg Siskins, Sickle-winged Chat, and an awesome male Sentinel Rock Thrush. We took a long time to find Drakensberg Rockjumper but finally ended up finding a female bird on the way.

Lesotho produced nice sightings of Southern Bald Ibis, Grey Tit, Layard's Warbler, and Ground Woodpecker. We also managed to find one of the areas where Bearded Vultures have been known to breed. A single bird was cruising around effortlessly, occasionally perching on the cliff sides. The way back down gave us the one species we were missing, the male Drakensberg Rockjumper. We enjoyed watching a very confiding bird move around feeding and occasionally perching for nice photographs. Barratt's Warbler was our last new species for the day; it took some time to get visuals of this skulker, but once it came out we really had some nice views.

Probably one of the birds of the trip –Drakensberg Rockjumper

Day 9, 18th September 2019 – Travel back to Johannesburg

Our final morning in Natal was relaxing. We took a walk around the hotel grounds happy to see whatever would come our way. Olive Woodpecker came by calling loudly, we had some views of it moving up the trunk of a large tree. An immature Jackal Buzzard was also on the lookout, while a few African Black Ducks gave a really nice flyby. Some of the more common species were also nice to watch, namely Southern Fiscal, Cape Weaver, Bokmakierie, Pied Starling, Malachite Kingfisher, and the smart-looking Cape Sparrow. Greater Striped Swallows were also in attendance, giving their soft contact “krrru”-type call. Our journey back to Johannesburg was fairly long but overall really good to reflect on a successful trip.
